What Is Impact Assessment?

Impact assessment (IA) is a process and method to predict, plan for, and manage the effects of development on the ecological and human environment.

About IAIA

IAIA is an organization that promotes and perfects the use of IA. It accomplishes this by connecting IA professional and experts through its annual conferences and various online networks, offering training and education opportunities, and distributing best practice documents, an journal and newsletter, and other publications.

Established in 1980, the International Association for Impact Assessment is a global network and educational organization dedicated to supporting and developing international capacity in IA. The Association has members in more than 100 countries. IAIA seeks to ensure that environmental, social, economic and technical dimensions of decisions are understood by those making them.

Our mission, our vision, our values

IAIA is the leading global network on best practice in the use of IA for informed decision making regarding policies, programs, plans and projects.

IAIA believes the assessment of the environmental, social, economic, cultural and health implications for proposals to be a critical contribution to sound decision-making processes, and to equitable and sustainable development.

IAIA promotes the application of integrated and participatory approaches to IA, conducted to the highest professional standards.

IAIA provides an international forum for advancing innovation and communication of best practice in all forms of IA to further the development of local, regional, and global capacity in IA.
